A town so very nice should take the precaution to have itself well canned and set aside where sudden changes of weather will not reach it.

A New York World reporter dickered long enough with the police to establish the fact, if it needed to be established, that anybody who will pay the price may run a gambling hell without molestation. The exposure could not have been a surprise, but the well told details may belp to open the eyes of New Yorkers to another fact which doe not seem to have made its due impres sion on them, namely, that they live in the worst governed city in America.

It Would Be Awful, An English trade paper laments that the proposed tin plate duty, "if passed. will almost annihilate the tin plate industry in South Wales, the United States taking three-fourths of all that is made." Mr. Cleveland on Our National Game

Mr. Grover Cleveland said to a re-"Base ball might do for a national game if it were conducted differently. But, you see, the public does not take enough direct part in the game.' In some localities the public has done what it could to overcome the ex-President's objection. Umpires have been And it must be confessed that this always adds a zest to the game. No matter how poor the playing is, if the home crowd will get upon the umpire and scatter him in all directions, a certain something is added to the game which not all the fine playing in the base ball world could impart. If the area of disturbance were en larged to take in the visiting club as well as the umpire, we should have the public taking a more direct part in the game, and base ball might reach the dignity of a real national sport. Mr. Cleveland is a deep thinker and a citizen of weight.
